

ILLINOIS CONVENTION RATIFIES REPEAL TODAY

TOWNSHIP FARM WILL YIELD BIG CROP THIS FALL

To Provide Vegetables For Relief Work In This Community

The crop outlook for the Dixon township community farm, two miles southwest of Dixon, is most encouraging and the condition of the crops gives promise of a bountiful supply of vegetables for the coming winter to be used in the relief program. The farm, which is known as the Pitts place, consists of 131 acres and at the present time is the scene of much activity each day. Crews of ten unemployed men, residents of Dixon township, are busy each day of the week caring for the large acreage, which has been planted and the first harvest is expected to begin within a few days.

Frank Howe is the managing farmer and superintendent and directs all of the activities of the working crews daily. Two hot beds were prepared early in the spring in which all of the cabbage and tomato plants were grown from seed. An old concrete silo has been made an ideal hot bed in which hundreds of plants were grown. It is necessary to build another hot bed to provide sufficient plants to supply the need. At the present time and as the result of the recent rains, the outlook is for a bumper crop which will go a long way toward supplying needy families of Dixon township during the winter months. Heads of families who have been receiving aid from the township donate their services in caring for the varied crops.

These men are taken to the farm each morning and work until noon, when they are brought to the Dixon Community Kitchen where they are furnished with a wholesome warm meal. They are then returned to the farm where they resume work.

55 Acres Of Potatoes
Fifty-five acres of the farm have been planted in Red River potatoes and the first field is expected to begin yielding supplies for the Community Kitchen before the end of July. The present outlook is for a crop of about 5,000 bushels of potatoes from this acreage. Twenty acres were planted in white field corn. Some of this crop which is expected to yield about 1,000 bushels, will in all probability be canned for use at the Community Kitchen during the winter. Thirty acres of the farm, which were not suited for vegetable gardening, have been leased out for pasture and from the rental derived from this source the sale of the balance of the field corn crop, the committee expects to be able to pay the rental of the entire farm for the season.

Four acres were planted in sweet corn and the present indication is for an excellent crop. All of this will be canned and stored for the winter use. There are two and one-half acres in onions, which it is believed will be sufficient to supply the Kitchen for the winter. Three and one-half acres of string beans will be the first crop to be harvested from the farm and this work will start within a few days. All of this crop will be canned and stored for winter use.

25,000 Tomato Plants
There are 25,000 tomato plants set out together with 15,000 cabbage plants. The two crops are in fine condition and the tomatoes are expected to begin yielding within a very few weeks. All of the plants were raised in the hot beds at the farm. One and one-quarter acres were planted in carrots and one and one-half acres in beets. These crops are the poorest on the entire farm but from the present outlook will yield many bushels of vegetables which are much needed in the operation of the Community Kitchen. Recently one acre of the farm was planted in turnips.

A large orchard in which many sturdy varieties of apple trees are to be found is expected to produce about 1,000 bushels of apples. The crews of ten workmen spent two days in the orchard which was in a badly run-down and neglected condition, trimming the trees, burning the rubbish and the entire orchard has been sprayed four times to destroy insect pests.

At Minimum Expense
The committee in charge of the project has been successful in putting out the varied crop at a minimum expense. Tractors and operators for the planting of the crops were donated by Dixon township. Only a small supply of tools had to be purchased. Potato planters were loaned to the committee and three teams were used in planting. Some of these are still in use, plowing the fields. The machinery necessary for the preparation of the soil was donated by the J. I. Case Company, formerly the Grand Detour Plow Company. The work of preparing the land was carried on under the supervision of George Nettz who has been one of the most active members of the committee.

The project in its entirety promises to be one of the most successful ventures ever undertaken in Dixon township. In addition to the excellent crop at the farm, all of the families dependent upon the welfare relief committee were

Bank Robbers Stage Gun Battle With Sandwich Home Guard And Make Escape With $4,000 Cash

Sandwich, Ill., July 10 —(AP)—Four robbers held up the State Bank of Sandwich today, fought a gun battle on the streets with members of the recently-organized town guard, and escaped with more than $4,000 in cash.

One of the bandits was believed to have been wounded in an exchange of 25 shots as they left the bank. The town guards who fired at them were Al M. Hubbard and F. E. Kessler, merchants.

Three of the robbers, two of them with pistols and the other carrying a rifle, entered the bank and forced the president, E. C. Mosher, and two girl employees, to stand facing the wall. At least one robber remained in the automobile outside, a black sedan with Illinois license plates 1-079,014. Partly concealed in doorways, Hubbard and Kessler began firing as the robbers left the bank. One of the bandits appeared to have been wounded. The automobile sped away in the direction of Chicago. Bank officials said the loss would not exceed $5,000 and that it was covered fully by insurance.

DIXON GIRL IS MODEST HEROINE SAVED ONE LIFE

Dorothy Groth Rescued Chicago Girl From Drowning

Miss Dorothy Groth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Groth, 422 Monroe avenue, this city, who is employed in Chicago, appeared in the role of life saver last week when she waded out into Lake Michigan and rescued one of two sisters, who were drowning. Miss Groth had rescued one of the girls and hurriedly left the scene before newspaper photographers arrived and is now enjoying a vacation in Wisconsin.

The Chicago American in commenting upon the heroic rescue, says: "Frances Demma, 17, of 919 Linden avenue, Winnetka, who like the other girls was 'sneaking a swim' at the private beach of Max Epstein, 915 Sheridan road, a wealthy lawyer, saw the peril of the two and hurried to them. 'Taller than the other girls she was able to keep her head above water and began dragging the two to shore.'"

Miss Groth appears at the inquest into the elder Demma girl's drowning but left immediately afterward with the family with whom she makes her home, for a vacation outing in northern Wisconsin and newspaper photographers who arrived at the inquest late, were unable to secure her picture.

Disbursements In Petrie Estate Are Over One Million

A hearing on the current final report in the late N. A. Petrie of Ashton estate was held before Judge Leach in the county court this morning. The total disbursements by executors from March 16, 1927 to March 31, 1933 exceeded $1,300,000. The several attorneys appearing in the case, have filed claims asking $17,000, in addition to the amount which has heretofore been paid. The executors ask $11,000 in addition to the amount which has been paid from the estate.

World Conference To Be Adjourned About July 26 Until Later In The Year

Steering Committee Decides On Action Tentatively

London, July 10 —(AP)—The steering committee of the world economic conference today decided tentatively that the purely would be adjourned on or about July 26, it was said in well informed quarters.

This decision was taken at a meeting of the committee which found the deadlock over the question whether monetary matters should be discussed remained unbroken.

The monetary commission of the conference, however, at a meeting later today voted 23 to 15 to retain all the original questions on the agenda for treatment in the further work of the congress.

This vote by the monetary group was seen as a defeat for France and her gold allies but the strength of the opposing minority was enough to indicate the size of the difficulty which has arisen over the future program.

Agree With Gold Bloc
The steering committee which is composed of the leaders of the conference agreed to eliminate subsidies and commercial policy—including tariffs and quotas—from the further deliberations. This vote agreed with the gold bloc's desires.

The committee, however, was unable to decide whether monetary questions, which the European gold countries say cannot be dealt with until stabilization is realized, should be treated and asked a drafting committee to consider this controversial matter and report to the steering group tomorrow afternoon.

After today's meeting it was stated that the conference would be adjourned on July 26 for an indefinite period, perhaps two months.

Reconvene In Autumn
In the meantime the conference would complete such work as is possible in view of the disagreement between the gold bloc and the non-gold countries. Committees would be appointed to prepare resumption of the deliberations in the autumn.

It was understood that the steering committee feels that sufficient work can be found to keep the conference going another fifteen days at least. Developments in that period might even justify further continuance of the sessions beyond that date.

Some of the non-gold countries' delegates indeed predicted that events would warrant further continuance, although the gold bloc professed to see little use in keeping on with the discussions even for the present.

JOSEPH URBAN, FAMOUS ARTIST, DESIGNER DEAD

Never Saw His Final Great Work At Chicago's Fair

New York, July 10 —(AP)—Joseph Urban, 61, famous artist and stage designer, died today at his hotel apartment.

Urban is survived by his widow and a daughter, Gretel. Funeral services will be held Wednesday.

Urban was born in Vienna, Austria, in 1872, the son of Joseph Urban and Helen Weber. He attended the Art Academy and the Polytechnicum in Vienna and afterwards continued his studies as a pupil of Baron Carl Hasenauer.

The Viennese artist came to the United States in 1911 and six years later was admitted to citizenship in this country.

He divided his life's career between painting and designing, and at one time directed the productions of the International film studio here.

NEVER SAW LAST WORK
Chicago, July 10 —(AP)—Joseph Urban died without having seen the last great work of his life—the vivid, modernistic color scheme of A Century of Progress Exposition. Urban last visited Chicago and the World's Fair in September of last year, months before the exposition opened. At that time he mapped out the plans which made the angular buildings of the fair the newest thing in color.

His representative came here from New York to supervise the work, and Urban kept in close touch through him and through officials of the exposition.

STATE CAPITOL BADLY DAMAGED BY FIRE SUNDAY

South Wing Of The State House Scene Of $75,000 Conflagration

Springfield, Ill., July 10 —(AP)—Fire in the Illinois Capitol burned through a portion of the south wing Sunday afternoon for three hours. Damage from flames, water and smoke today was estimated at nearly $100,000 by state officials who said it was the first severe fire at the State House.

There was no information on how the fire started, but apparently damage to records and official papers was held to a minimum in the offices of the State Architect and the Division of Oil Inspection, where the flames centered.

Governor Horner and Secretary of State Hughes personally took charge of efforts to hold to a minimum damage from streams of water which soaked through the House of Representatives and into the corridor on the second floor.

Confined To Two Floors
The fire was confined to the fifth and sixth stories at the southern end of the State House. Above the House chamber, where the fourth floor is the top stream of water from hose lines piled up on the roof and streamed through to soak the room below.

One fireman, Harold Hickey, suffered two fractured ribs while groping through the heat and smoke filled upper rooms on the south wing. There were no other casualties.

Secretary Hughes, who is official guardian of the Capitol grounds, said the blaze might have been caused by defective wiring. The roof of the south wing, as well as the Capitol dome, has been under repair for nearly a year. Most of the repair work was ruined. One section of the roof caved in.

Hughes estimated the damage at about $75,000. Pending a complete survey, other figures ran up to $100,000.

The Governor indicated that the construction work would be started without delay on the roof and office rooms. Whether the House chamber would be repaired at once had not been determined.

All City's Fire Equipment
All the city's fire equipment turned out, but the flames were inaccessible and difficult to bring under control as firemen laid hose lines in the hot and smoke filled rooms on the fifth and sixth floors.

Water poured in streams through the ceiling of the House of Representatives, soaking the Speaker's rostrum and desks which had been placed in the southern part of the room. One Corinthian column was transformed into a fountain, and water poured off the galleries in sixes.

Tarpaulins were spread to protect part of the furniture and the portraits of Abraham Lincoln and Stephen Douglas which hang in the House chamber. Apparently there was no severe damage in the Speaker's private office and other southern third floor rooms.

Large crowds gathered on the Capitol grounds during the afternoon watching columns of smoke.

Burst Of Water From Radiator Is Cause Of Fatality

Mount Vernon, Ky., July 10 —(AP)—Barbara Lile Reynolds, 12, was killed and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Reynolds of Knoxville and their younger daughter, Geary, were injured in the overturning of their automobile near here yesterday. The radiator cap came off, and the burst of hot water confused Mrs. Reynolds, who was driving. She jammed on the brakes and the machine skidded over an embankment.

The Reynolds were en route to Centralia, Ill., to visit Mrs. Reynolds' mother, Mrs. Margaret Geary.

Department Of Justice Plans Prosecution Of Profiteers In Bread, Atty. General Declares

Washington, July 10 —(AP)—The Department of Justice today was formulating a policy for dealing with "unreasonable" increases in bread prices coming in the wake of the 30 cents a bushel processing tax on wheat which went into effect with the turn of the week.

Complaints of increases, which Secretary Wallace considers "too high", are being turned over to Attorney General Cummings for investigation and possible prosecution under the anti-trust laws, where the increases are being put into effect by groups of bakers and dealers.

Herbert Connor, Well Known Lee Co. Artist Dead

Mr. Connor who had many friends throughout the entire county, had been in failing health for some time and recently suffered two strokes, which hastened his death. He was born in Pennsylvania Aug. 5, 1851 and survived by his widow.

EVANSTON COPS SHOT TWO THUGS ROBBERY BOUND

Two Companions Of Gunmen Made Their Escape Today

Chicago, July 10 —(AP)—Four gunmen on their way to hold up the Wilmette, Ill., State Bank, engaged in a running battle with two Evanston policemen today.

One of the four was shot down when police fire disabled the bandit car. Another was captured when he leaped from the car and sprained his ankle.

Another of the bandit squad fled under police fire, and at noon police were searching west of Niles Center, northern suburb, in the belief he had hidden there.

Sergeants Hubert Keish and Aubertone Seely, cruising Evanston streets in a squad car, saw the four and noticed the windshield of their car was broken. When the police attempted to stop them for questioning, the bandits sped away. The two policemen opened fire and the bandits answered.

The two captured when their car failed gave their names as John Maitl, 22, and Floyd Hampton, 21, both of Chicago. Maitl was shot in the arm. Hampton confessed the four had intended to rob the bank.

Got His Neighbor's Goat: Sheriff Acts

Sheriff Fred Richardson was called upon Sunday morning to settle a case in which one neighbor got another neighbor's goat. It was reported that a resident of Dixon township staked out a nanny goat Saturday evening where pasture was choice and Sunday morning, nanny was missing. Sheriff Richardson was called upon to apprehend the culprit who removed the goat. It was reported that another neighbor, who wended his way homeward late Saturday night, after an evening's celebration, unfastened nanny and took her to his home. Nanny was returned to her rightful owner as the result of the Sheriff's investigation.

Joliet, Ill., July 10 —(AP)—Mack Frack, 26, of Peoria, Ill., released from the state penitentiary a year ago after serving six years for larceny was arrested at the prison yesterday while talking to a Negro trusty inside the walls.

County authorities said Frank would be questioned about why he visited the prison for the second time.

DELEGATES MET IN CAPITOL TO RECORD ACTIONS

Were In Session Less Than Hour: State Is Tenth To Ratify

Springfield, Ill., July 10 —(AP)—Illinois today ratified the proposed amendment to repeal national prohibition.

By unanimous action, the fifty delegates to the state convention voted to adopt a resolution ratifying the proposed twenty-first amendment to the federal Constitution.

Formal action completed, the convention adjourned less than an hour after it was called to order by Governor Horner.

Bruce A. Campbell, East St. Louis, presided over the meeting of the anti-prohibitionists, who were elected by a majority of 1,200,000 to 340,000 at the June 5 repeal election.

There were only two speeches before Senator Harold G. Ward, Chicago Democrat who acted as secretary, called the roll on the resolution by which Illinois became the tenth state to ratify the repeal proposal.

Met Less Than Hour
Four minutes after the 50 to 0 vote had been announced to the delegates, and approximately 250 others in the Senate chamber, the convention adjourned. It had been in session 55 minutes.

Governor Horner opened the meeting with a declaration that: "The eighteenth amendment is doomed. Let us pray that with it will go the political cowardice that made it possible."

As soon as they were called to order by the Governor at noon, the fifty anti-prohibition delegates recessed to move from the House of Representatives, water soaked from yesterday's Capitol fire, to the Senate chamber.

There Horner compared the campaign against prohibition to the slavery issue preceding the Civil War on the ground that "political cowardice" had yielded to a "vociferous and active minority."

"This convention, in casting its vote against the eighteenth amendment, is declaring the strong opposition of our people to any amendment of our national constitution that denies to the several states, and to the people of each state, the control of their own citizens," the Governor declared.

"x x x We rejoice in the realization that the voters of Illinois and the nation have been given their long sought opportunity to regain rights that have been denied them for more than a dozen years."

Holds Repeal Assured
Holding that repeal of prohibition is assured, Horner said there "will not be found enough states in the union to defy the majority will so overwhelmingly expressed by the citizenship of the nation."

A large group of prominent visitors, including part of the state's congressional delegation, was seated on the Senate floor as the convention organized to take the formal action decided upon when Illinois voted for repeal June 5.

"Millions are eagerly awaiting your action as a lesson which the adoption of the eighteenth amendment should have taught the people of the United States," the Governor continued.

That lesson is that political cowardice is the thing which is most dangerous to our institutions. Parties, officials and legislators who lack courage to do what they believe is right because of the clamor of an organized minority are sufficiently warned by our experiences under the eighteenth amendment."

HYMN TO THE NIGHT

I HEARD the trailing garments of the Night
Sweep through her marble halls!
I saw her sable skirts all fringed with light
From the celestial walls!

I felt her presence, by its spell of might,
Stoop o'er me from above;
The calm majestic presence of the Night,
As of the one I love.

I heard the sounds of sorrow and delight,
The manifold, soft chimes,
That fill the haunted chambers of the Night,
Like some old poet's rhymes.

From the cool cisterns of the midnight air
My spirit drank repose;
The fountain of perpetual peace
Flows there—
From those deep cisterns flows.

O holy Night! from thee I learn to bear
What man has borne before!
Thou layest thy finger on the lips of Care,
And they complain no more.

Ralstons Entertain At Century Club

From the society columns of the Chicago Sunday Tribune, of Sunday, July 9th, we clip the following interesting article:

That same evening, which is always the big night at the Century club, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ralston of Dixon had a party dining to meet their guest, Miss Virginia Pope of New York. There must have been eighteen or twenty tightly sardined at one long table—but that is what guests truly love—to sit tight. And for the first time there was color in the sunset, red and yellow, and then on came the high colored spray of fountains, and the amazing electric signs and portents of the Fair, and the swish of little boats in the lagoon.

Virginia Hamilton Pope is a Chicago girl who has made good in a big city New York. Related to the McCormick family through the Hamiltons, she is a cousin of nearly all the McCormicks. But whether this is an asset or a liability she doesn't know. For some years she has been associate editor of the New York Times, editor of the Sunday fashion page, with an interesting position in New York society.

Mrs. Jack Ralston is well known in ultra Chicago circles as one of the two fair Reynolds sisters of Dixon. They are the owners of a beautiful country estate on the

Art Exhibit At Grand Detour Is Successful Event

One of the most interesting and enjoyable events held in the Rock River Valley the latter part of the week, including Sunday, was the Art Exhibit at Illini Hall, Grand Detour, by five artists, Holger Jensen, Oscar Soelner, John Nolf, J.
Theodore Johnson and Mrs. R. M.
Ferguson, in connection with the annual pilgrimage to St. Peter's Episcopal church, the special service for which was the 4 o'clock vesper service at which time Father Holt of the Grace Episcopal Church, Oak Park, delivered a most inspiring sermon. This service was held out of doors, and was attended by a large assemblage of people, more than a hundred, from all over this section, visitors coming from Mount Morris, Oregon, Stelling, Dixon, Rockford, Winnebago, Belvidere, Tampico, etc. The service out of doors was most enjoyable, the Junior choir of St.
Luke's Episcopal church of Dixon, directed by Mrs. Lester Wilhelm, providing the pilgrimage music.
This was the eighty-fourth anniversary of the building of historic St. Peter's next to the oldest church in the state. Rev. A. B.
Whitcomb, for many years rector at St. Luke's in Dixon, is now the resident rector at St. Peter's. There were special services and music Sunday at the church with the sermon by Father Holt at Vesper service marking the close of an inspiring and spiritually satisfying day.

Profitable Exhibit

The art exhibit held in connection with the pilgrimage to St. Peter's was sponsored by St. Peter's church and by St. Agnes Guild of St.
Luke's church, Dixon. The exhibit was held on Friday, Saturday and Sunday in Illini Hall. More than one hundred and twenty dollars was realized during the three days of the exhibit. Nearly eighty dollars was taken at the door of the exhibit Sunday.

Miss Mae Flynn of Dixon has been awarded the picture at the exhibit, and she is considered most fortunate, for these artists are recognized all over the United States.
Artists agree that one of the most delightful spots in which to sketch and to become inspired is quaint old Grand Detour, beautifully situated on the banks of the swiftly flowing Rock. Here is Nature in one of her most attractive and complacent moods, winter or summer and an artist is quick to observe this fact.

The only woman artist exhibiting at the show was Mrs. R. M. Fer-

Hollywood.—The white costumes, touched up by contrasting accessories, are good from the ballroom to the beach, these days.

June Vlasak wears one of the new oyster white knitted bathing suits, with a halter neckline, back-sol is oyster white, striped in red

Hurrying down the Boulevard, outfit, with a huge blue tie, tied in sailor fashion at her neck.

When Dolores Del Rio and her husband, Cedric Gibbons, sailed for a vacation, Dolores wore a white cotton broadcloth suit, with almost invisible black checks in it and her white hat pulled down so far that her right eyebrow was invisible.

Arline Judge, arriving at the studio, wore a white skirt and white jacket with puffed sleeves puffed up to her elbows and a white bow tied under her chin.

At a regular get-together for new

First Gehant Reun- ion, at Amboy, Was A Decided Success

The first Gehant family reunion was held at the Amboy Fair grounds on Sunday, July 9th, and proved an unqualified success. Over three hundred relatives were present representing the three families of Laurant, Claude and Modeste Gehant, all of whom are now deces-ed, who came to this country from France in the early days.

Sunday was an ideal day for an outing. At 12:30 a picnic dinner was enjoyed, after which all assembled for photographs. Then a business meeting was held to perfect an organization.

Officers elected included Frank J. Gehant, Sr., of West Brooklyn, who was elected president for the ensuing year. Arthur F. Gehant of Ashton was elected vice president and X. F. Gehant of Dixon was elected secretary and treasurer.

The president not being present on account of illness, the newly elected vice president, Arthur Gehant and secretary-treasurer, X. F.
Gehant made short addresses. H.
L. Gehant of Dixon, was made chairman of the re-union committee for next year. It was also voted to hold the next reunion at the Amboy Fair Grounds next year on the first Sunday following the Fourth of July.

There were many present from different parts of the United States, including George M. Gehant and family of Canby, Minn.

After the picnic dinner was enjoyed and election of officers held, and other business was transacted the remainder of the afternoon was spent in visiting and in reminis-cences. All present very much enjoyed this first reunion and much enthusiasm was manifested for the next annual meeting.

Believes Women Will Help Solve Economic Problems

Chicago, July 9.—(AP)—Mrs.
Geline MacDonald Bowman of Richmond, Va., president of the National Federation of Business & Professional Women's Clubs, says she believes women will do much in helping to solve present economic problems.

She expressed herself prior to the opening today of the four-day convention of the organization she heads.

Woman's gradual entrance into business, she said, was bringing about a change in the world's "business attitude" which would ultimately result in a solution of economic questions.

Women who can adapt themselves to unusual situations and who are seeking all-around business training were advised to take up newspaper work in small communities by Mrs. Elizabeth Coyne Pierre, S. D., in a round table today talk at the convention.

However, added Mrs. Coyne, edition of the Pierre Times, "there are no possible chances to make a fortune" in the business, "but is one that always assures the publisher a comfortable living."

ONE OF HISTORY'S GREATEST TRAGEDIES IS REVEALED.

The tragedies of history are usually expressible in terms of things that did not happen.

Publication of secret messages in the diplomatic files at Washington shows that Germany and Austria sought to make peace in January of 1918, and that their effort failed because they were unwilling to surrender to the entire American program.

Chancellor Hertling of Germany, it is recorded, told the Reichstag a fortnight after President Wilson had published his famous Fourteen Points that Germany could make peace on that program—with certain exceptions.

Germany, said the chancellor, could not agree to those points involving overseas colonies, evacuation of occupied territories and creation of a free Poland. The other points Germany could accept.

It is worth while glancing briefly at that program.

The Fourteen Points called for open peace covenants and an end of secret treaties, removal of trade barriers, freedom of the seas, disarmament, readjustment of colonial claims in the interests of the inhabitants of colonized territories, evacuation of all occupied French, Russian and Belgian territory, restoration of Alsace-Lorraine, a realignment of Italian frontiers, autonomy for Austro-Hungarian minorities, evacuation of occupied territories in the Balkans, autonomy for minorities in Turkey, an independent Poland and the organization of a League of Nations.

Germany, then, was ready to accept most of these items—but the ones she was not ready to accept were in some ways the most important of all.

At that point of time—the dawn of 1918—Germany's rulers felt it wiser to stake everything on a last offensive rather than to surrender on those crucial points. Similarly, the Allied leaders preferred to go on with the war rather than to recede from their original demands.

Those decisions were a death sentence for hundreds of thousands of young men. They brought civilization measurably nearer to collapse. They paved the way for those injustices in the Versailles treaty which today are a tremendous menace to world peace and world stability.

Is it not one of the great tragedies of all history that that peace movement of January, 1918, could not come to flower?

SAFEGUARDING THE INVESTOR.

A. A. Berle, Jr., a member of the Rooseveltian "brain trust," writes in the current issue of the American Bankers Association Journal that investment bankers should form a sort of "committee of public safety" to scrutinize all investment banking proposals from the standpoint of public interest and to oppose all such transactions of which it did not approve.

In the same issue, a Massachusetts banker objects to the plan on the ground that while such a committee would have little trouble in passing on really high-grade issues or in rejecting issues of a frankly suspicious character, "it would have great difficulty in passing on the mass of securities between these extremes, because the final determination of their investment value would always rest in the future."

Here, it seems, is a slight misconception of the case. Certainly no committee could be wise enough to say that any given security issue will always be worth 100 cents on the dollar. The investor must always face a certain element of risk. What such a committee could do is make certain that securities were issued in the proper manner, based on sound assets and put on the market with all essential facts made public.

$1.00 WHEAT AND THE FARMER.

Before we all get too jubilant over the advent of dollar wheat, it is worth remembering that a lot of wheat belt farmers won't be helped a great deal by this price level because of the simple fact that they have very little wheat to sell.

Last year's crop has been sold. A heavy drought has badly damaged a great deal of this year's crop. The farmer who still has some of last year's wheat in his bins, and the farmer who has been lucky enough to get a good yield this year in spite of the hot, dry weather—these chaps are due to cash in abundantly.

But a lot of farmers, unfortunately, are going to find that dollar wheat—for the time being, at least—leaves them just about where they were before.

Probably the greatest problem for modern civilization to solve is how can individuals, communities, nations and races learn to live together and solve their problems without bloodshed and war.—Chancellor Frederick M. Hunter, University of Denver.

Tax evasion may be fair enough according to law . . . but whenever we place the burden of life upon the shoulders of others we cease to live according to the law of God.—Bishop William P. Remington, Oregon.

Mob rule has never been satisfactory for a jury of 12 men or 120,000,000 people.—Dr. George Cutten, president of Colgate.

Sidelights In News In Capital
Of United States

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington — With the machinery designed to bring about the economic recovery of the nation gradually beginning to function, the question now is being asked by observers in the capital as to what the supreme court would do should the justices be called upon to pass on the constitutional phases of various measures.

While the industrial recovery bill was before the senate, this phase of the measure came in for a lot of serious consideration.

Borah of Idaho expressed great concern over the provision in the bill dealing with the Sherman anti-trust act. He and Wagner of New York, who engineered the bill through the senate, engaged in one of the liveliest debates in recent times on the subject.

Then, too, the prediction has been made that an often-heard republican campaign assertion in 1934 and 1936 will be that the President has put congress and the constitution on the shelf.

If the issue is brought to a test, it will be the supreme court which must decide.

STRAWS IN THE WIND—

And in this connection, attention is being centered on a recent supreme court decision as a possible index to the tribunal's thought on this question.

It was a decision handed down on March 13 of this year in the case of the Appalachian Coal, Inc. vs. the United States. Chief Justice Hughes wrote the opinion and only Justice McReynolds dissented.

Much may be heard of this decision in the future, for it deals largely with just the point so often raised at the present on legislation enacted during the special session of congress.

The coal operators contended it was not their purpose in organizing the corporation to restrain trade, or to limit production, but merely to sell the coal produced.

The "deplorable condition of the coal industry" was cited and acknowledged by the lower court.

AS HUGHES SAW IT—

When the case was appealed to the Supreme Court, Chief Justice Hughes in his opinion reversed the decision of the lower court. And in doing so, he made this statement:

"The restrictions the act (Sherman) imposes are not mechanical, or artificial — They call for vigilance in the detection and frustration of all efforts unduly to restrain the free course of interstate commerce, but they do not seek to establish a mere deplorable liberty either by making impossible the normal and fair expansion of that commerce or the adoption of reasonable measures to protect it from injurious and destructive practices and to promote competition upon a sound basis."

ROCHELLE

By Arthur T. Guest

Rochelle—Thursday, Aug. 24 has been set by the Rochelle Business and Professional Men's Association for this year's annual farmers' picnic. Several changes and new features are planned for this year. Kieth Wehner of the agricultural department of the high school, is again co-operating with the officers and committees who are already at work.

Hotel Collier now under the management of the original owner, Charles Collier, is being completely redecorated and refurnished.

Work has been completed in the lobby and dining room with progress being made with the painting on the third floor. Mr. Collier has purchased many new pieces of furniture for the lobby as well as new carpets, draperies and other furnishings.

All of the fifty rooms of the hotel will be redecorated and many new furnishings added. New bedding and draperies are being purchased. Local painters and decorators are being employed to do the work.

The receiver of the Peoples Loan &amp; Trust Co. bank has sold the stock and fixtures of the Albright Pharmacy to Eli Nimz of Chicago and everything in the store is being sold out at from one-half to one-third of the regular prices. Harold Nimz, son of the buyer, and Mat Cohen, a registered pharmacist have charge of the sale.

Augustus Caspers, Rochelle's pioneer greenhouse man, has made all arrangements for a new greenhouse. The material has been ordered and he expects to have everything in readiness for early fall seeds. He has been handicapped in not having enough equipment for his business and for that reason was unable to supply all the demands for his plants ordered during the past season.

Rochelle postal carriers are now delivering mail in the residential districts of the city once daily, the afternoon service having been discontinued for the next six months. The business district service has not been changed by the postal authorities, who, in complying with orders for a three-day payless furlough each month for employees, are taking this means of limiting the working hours to the required time.

A similar plan is being carried out by the clerks at the post office, who are now on duty an hour later in the morning and an hour earlier in the afternoon. The new time schedule does not affect the opening of the postoffice building. The closing hour of the office will be 7:30 P. M. and of the window service at 6:30 P. M.

THE SQUALOR OF A COAL MINER'S LIFE

By Bruce Catton

"Count Your Blessings," by Rhys Davies is another of those strong and forceful stories of one of England's underprivileged proletarian groups—in this case the coal miners, and if you persevere to the end you will assimilate a story which doubtless will be very good for you, or something.

Coal miners everywhere seem to have a pretty tight time of it, and in England, apparently, things are no exception to this rule. Mr. Davies' miners live in squalid squalor, with a horizon limited by the coal pits on one side and the village pub on the other; and when the lovely daughter of one of these miners, aged on by her mother, tries to rise above her environment, the reader can do nothing less than hope for the best.

This particular young lady goes to the city and becomes a daughter of joy in a disorderly house—which, incidentally, seems to have been one of the most genteel and respectable establishments of its kind ever seen on land or sea. She

A CERTIFIED INTERVIEW WITH MR. GEORGE R. STEVENS, 1006 SPRING STREET, ELGIN, ILL.

"It's a piece of real Precision Engineering" . . . says this Watchmaker

PEOPLE like Mr. Stevens understand why Plymouth carries "details" so far. Four rings per piston instead of three. Four crankshaft bearings. Full pressure lubrication—not hit-or-miss splash.

Those things are good engineering. Of course they're details when you compare them in importance with Floating Power engine mountings—hydraulic brakes—safety-steel bodies.

But details count—and we'd like you to see how much. "Look at all three" . . . and see for yourself why Plymouth is growing so fast.

CANCER HOUSES

Before the discovery of the tubercle bacillus in 1882 by Robert Koch, statistical studies gave rise to the impression that there were such things as "tuberculosis houses" and "lung blocks."

These were districts and houses, usually located in poor and crowded sections, in which there were many victims of the White Plague.

In recent years the question has again been raised in terms of cancer. Do cancer houses or cancer districts really exist? The basis for such questions is found in statistical studies showing the number of cases recorded by houses or districts.

Statistical data, however, sometimes leads to bizarre deductions. Thus, for example, it was observed some 80 years ago that our infant mortality is highest when the asphalt is softest. This correlation is purely accidental and not causative.

Before the days of the refrigeration of food and the pasteurization of milk, epidemics of diarrhea or, as it was called, summer complaint, cost the lives of many children. Naturally, the hotter the weather, the more rapid milk soured and the more severe were the cases of infantile diarrhea. Incidentally, too, the asphalt was softened.

As in this case, so in the case of the alleged cancer houses, the statistical method can prove nothing. It is quite evident that in most crowded house where the greatest number of tenants are to be found, there would normally be the greatest number of cancer, of births, deaths, or other physiologic and pathologic phenomena.

There is only one condition which modifies these observations, and that condition is occupational and industrial. Thus, in districts where workers are exposed to what are known as carcinogenic substances, that is, substances which are known to provoke cancerous growths, the incidence of cancer cases is higher than normal.

BLAH, HOKUM AND BUNK

(By Dr. Joseph Fort Newton)
An advertisement has been telling us that it is fun to be fooled. So it is, for a while in some things, if it is done in fun. Long ago Barnum learned that people like to be humbugged, and he made a fortune out of it.

Why should it be so? Is it a cheap substitute for romance, so lacking in our lives? Or is it the quest for "the consolation of unreality," as some one has called it?

But it gets to be an old story, and we are apt to swing from a glorified gullibility to an utter incredulity, as so many have done in our day. The famous firm of Blah, Hokum and Bunk suffered terribly in the late depression, and even before the slump its business had fallen off. So many fakes have been put over on us betimes, so many frauds imposed, that we do not trust anything or anybody. Indeed, it is difficult to put across the truth, if one is lucky enough to know it.

Some one has said that the change of attitude in our day amounts to a revolution—the "Amen" has ended and the era of "Oh Yeah" has arrived. Anyway, we are not so easily taken in by propaganda; we can smell it a mile off. If a man puts on a show we do not take it at face value; we go behind the scenes to find out what he means by it. We have learned by sad experience that the reasons which men give for their acts are seldom real reasons, even when they think they are.

For example, take the idea that war is inevitable and a matter of fate. Such fatalism is itself a fake on the face of it. Today we are finding out how wars are made and why! Wells wrote a story about a man who saw the World War through; but now we see through it. We see how the wheels go round and how the wires are pulled—how high ideals are used to hide low aims that end in self and social suicide.

Yet such scepticism may take us too far, ending in nihilism. It may result in a distrust of all reason as only a slight of mind, by which we give good reasons for bad deeds, or bad reasons for good beliefs. For if everything is blab and bunk we can never know the truth which alone can free us from fake and fraud.

MATTERN SEEKS PLANE; HOPES TO CONTINUE FLIGHT

May Continue His Solo Trip In Plane Sent
To Rescue Him

(By The Associated Press)

A plan to enable Jimmie Matern to continue his flight around the world—despite the misfortune that apparently wrecked his plane beyond repair in Siberia—was taking form today.

From Anadyr, Siberia, Matern wireless his Chicago backers asking that a plane be sent so he could fly back to New York solo.

The backers said they would "do everything" in their power to comply. Matern's message, received last night, asked that a rescue expedition plane now in Alaska, be sent. The Soviet government announced that a powerful seaplane would leave Khabarovsk, Siberia, momentarily for Anadyr, and that it was ready to fly from there to Nome, Alaska, to return Matern to American territory.

Matern's own plan was to fly solo from Anadyr to Nome in the American rescue expedition plane, and for the members of the expedition, which is headed by William Alexander, to return to Nome in the Russian plane.

His latest message, sent to H. B. Jameson, one of his backers in Chicago, said:

"Journal New York wires they will send me airplane to Anadyr to fly to Nome. Contact them and arrange for me to fly solo to Nome. Pilot to return to Nome in Russian airplane coming to my aid."

Jameson relayed the message to the New York Journal, backers of Alexander, who is now at Juneau, Alaska, with two other members of the expedition. They expected to take off today to fly to Anadyr by way of Fairbanks and Nome and comply with Matern's request.

Alexander and his companions flew several days ago from New York to Terrace, B. C., where they were forced down. Because the plane carries heavy equipment, they expected to use a lighter one for the flight to Siberia.

DOWN NEAR RIVER

Moscow, July 10. — (AP) — Dispatches from Khabarovsk, Siberia, published in today's Moscow newspapers say that Jimmie Matern, the American aviator, was forced down 80 miles from Anadyr (June 14) by motor trouble and that the fuselage and wing of his plane were damaged in landing because of the rough terrain.

The American came down on a spot three miles and a half from the bank of the river Anadyr, which on that date was still frozen over. How long he remained there without assistance is not yet known but today's dispatches said that he was found beside the damaged "Century of Progress" by a frontier guard boat which began patrolling the river as soon as the ice broke up.

Pravda's Khabarovsk correspondent expressed the opinion that the rifle and ammunition given Matern by Soviet authorities just before he left Khabarovsk stood the American in good stead during the time before he was rescued.

Could Kill Small Game With a rifle Matern would have been able to kill small game and thereby keep himself in food.

The Texan carried virtually no food with him from Khabarovsk. The frontier guard found the stranded American in good health and uninjured and taking him to Anadyr lodged him in the guard's barracks where he has resided since that time.

The guards also organized an expedition to pull Matern's damaged plane into Anadyr but dispatches did not make it clear whether this had been accomplished.

The region where Matern was forced down in the river valley is rough tundra with many small hills and swamps. There were no human beings nearer than Anadyr except small nomadic tribes of reindeer breeders, some of whom he may have encountered.

Meanwhile a Soviet rescue plane was scheduled to leave Khabarovsk early today for Anadyr.

Run On A Week Day

Chicago, July 10. — (AP) — The Gold Cup, $25,000-added high spot of the Hawthorne racing meeting, may be decided on a week-day, instead of the usual Saturday date, this year.

Secretary Joseph McLennan has tentatively announced the weight-for-age affair for August 24 or August 26. The $10,000-added Hawthorne Handicap will be decided August 5, and two other features, the $7,500-added Illinois owners' Handicap, and the Juvenile Handicap, are scheduled for August 12 and August 19, respectively.

Los Angeles, July 10. — (AP) — Orville Mohler, former University of Southern California football star, has been released by the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast League.

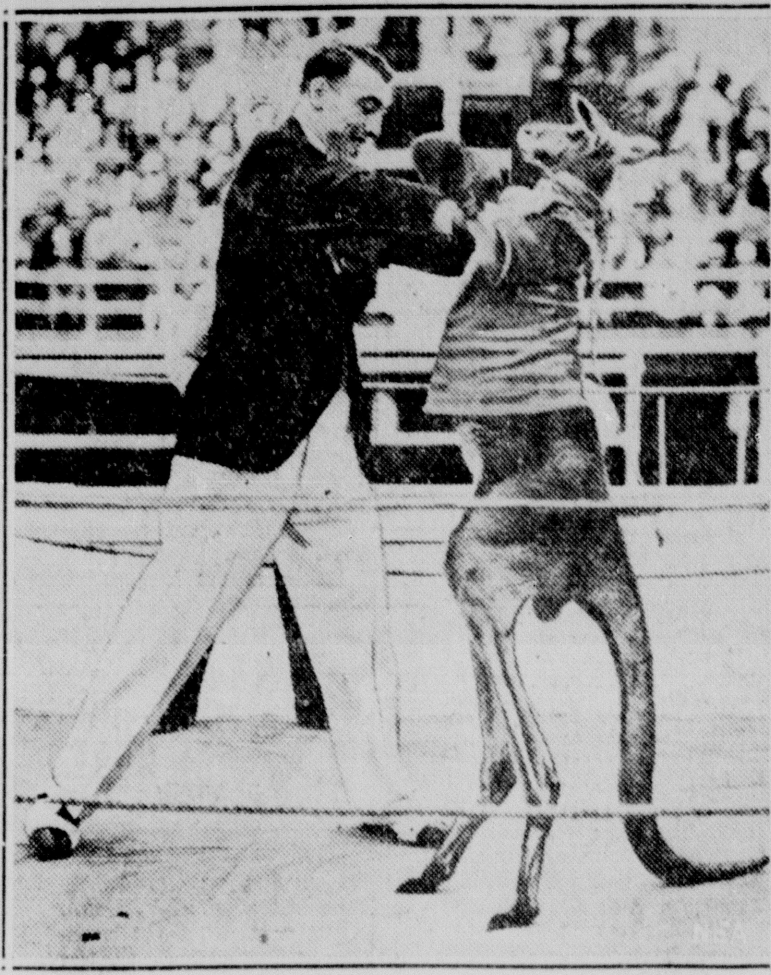

One of the greatest o. the Trojan quarterbacks, Mohler was batting well over 300 but his fielding fell short. George Buchanan, southpaw pitcher, also was dropped.

"We let them go chiefly because we had to cut down expenses," said Manager Jack LeVitt.

SEVERAL CHAMPS DEFEND TITLES IN WEEK'S CARD

Number of Interesting Ring Matches Are
On Schedule

New York, July 10. — (AP) — Ben Juby of New York opens a busy week for boxing champions at Newark tonight, defending his claim to the world's middleweight championship against the assault of Young Terry, aggressive 160-pounder from Trenton, N. J.

Juby, whose title claims rest upon recognition by the New York State Athletic Commission, rules a 6 to 5 favorite despite the fact that Terry took a decision from him two years ago. The bout, to be held in Dreamland Park, will be over the championship distance of 15 rounds.

The middleweight crown has been in dispute ever since Mickey Walker outwrestled the division, Marcel Thil of France holds National Boxing Association recognition as titleholder.

Other Champs Busy
Three other champions, Freddie Miller, Maxie Rosenbloom and Midget Wolgast, also swing into action this week as will Billy Petrolle, Duluth veteran who has abandoned all efforts at weight-making and will campaign strictly as a welterweight hereafter.

Miller, National Boxing Association featherweight king, will defend his crown in a 15-round match with Abie Israel, at Seattle tomorrow night. Miller, whose southpaw style has puzzled many good 126-pounders, is a well-defined favorite.

Rosenbloom, light heavyweight champion, and Wolgast, generally regarded as flyweight titleholder, will appear in overweight matches, the former against John Henry Lewis, Phoenix, Ariz., Negro at San Francisco tonight and Wolgast against Lew Barber of New York at Pugazzy Bowl, here tomorrow.

Petrolle starts his campaign for a shot at the welterweight championship in a ten-round match with Bep Van Klaveren, speedy Hollander, at the Polo Grounds here Wednesday night.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

ELINOR STAFFORD, 20, falls in love with BARRETT COLVIN, 35, returned to New York after years abroad. Barrett has made a name for himself as an archeologist. Elinor returns his affection but her jealous, scheming mother, LIDA STAFFORD, breaks up the romance by convincing Barrett that Elinor is a heartless flirt.

When Elinor's aunt, MISS ELLA SEXTON, dies she leaves her entire fortune to Barrett. Then drunken VANCE CARTER shoots BENTWELL STAFFORD, Elinor's father. Barrett who does not want the Sexton fortune tells the girl that if she will marry him and live in his home as a guest for a year he will give the entire sum to her to divide among the relatives. Elinor agrees, knowing the money may save her father's life.

The marriage takes place next day and Elinor and Barrett go to his home.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXV

ELINOR said firmly, "The most important thing is that I don't want to bother you. Not in the least!"

"You won't!" Barrett answered. Lord how he wanted to kiss her, to say, "Don't be afraid of me. We'll do our best to make a go of this as long as we must!"

Instead he patted her hands. "Powder your nose," he said briskly, "and come down to lunch. I suppose it's to be a bang-up affair. The cook will want to show you just how skillful she is. And I heard Higgins ordering enough flowers for a hothouse. By the way, the bath is behind the door to the right." He turned to sweep the room with critical eyes. "I left those shelves empty so you can fill them with the books you really want. Meantime there is a selection in my room from which you may be able to choose something that will send you to sleep. Is that night light working, I wonder?"

He moved toward the head of the narrow, four-posted mahogany bed to pull the small chain. "Yes, it's all right," he said with satisfaction.

He was at the doorway when she halted him. "Barrett?"

He wheeled, again moved toward her. "Yes?"

"I—I can't thank you enough for all this—" Her face, lifted to his, was infinitely appealing in its gratitude.

"I'm awfully glad you like it," he said. "I had a suspicion (smiling) that you might be rather fed-up with Chinese red and chromium and modernistic furnishings in general."

"I was," she agreed. "I'll telephone to ask how your father's been," he said, "and report at luncheon. It's to be served at half past one if that suits you."

"Perfectly. And thank you so much for everything!"

He smiled at her from the doorway leading to his room, gave her an airy salute and was gone, closing the door after him.

For a moment she stood staring at the closed door. Then once more she turned and looked around her. It was a lovely room. Lovely!

Her traveling bags had been placed in the adjoining dressing room. Elinor opened them, and, looking over her frocks, suddenly wished she had something that was very, very pretty to wear down to luncheon. She finally selected a soft tan silk frock which brought out the warmth of her hair. Celeste had said it was becoming. She must remember to tuck Celeste's handkerchief into her sleeve in order to show it to Barrett.

She dressed her hair in a roll at the back of her neck. She had worn it that way during those falsely happy days when Barrett had spent so much time with her. He had admired it that way.

Then, looking at the small clock on the mantelpiece, she hesitated. It was only one o'clock. It seemed incredible that her whole world could have changed as it had in the space of an hour. She wanted to go down but she did not want to intrude upon Barrett. Perhaps he would not want her to come down before she must. As she hesitated she heard a tap on the door. She opened it to find Higgins, the stolidness of the perfectly trained servant's face erased by the smile he could not subdue.

Mr. Colvin, said the butler, had sent word that he wished to speak with Mrs. Colvin. Would she join him down stairs whenever she was ready?

"Thank you, Higgins," Elinor said. He disappeared and after a deep breath she stepped into the upper hall. Barrett was standing at the foot of the stairs, one hand on a newel post, looking up at her.

"Look out for that treacherous step!" he called warningly. He found he could not keep his eyes from her as she came down. He had never seen her looking more beautiful.

"I've good news for you!" he announced. At his words she paused, two steps up, her face level with his. "Your father's nurse—Miss Hemmingsway, I think—answered my call and said that for the first time your father has shown real improvement."

"Oh!" she whispered on a deep intake of breath. "I'm so glad!"

"I wanted you to know right away because I understand what it means to you."

"It means—everything," she stated in a hush.

HE smiled down at her. "Suppose we go into the library," he suggested. "You haven't seen it yet, have you? Odd how old houses insist upon having libraries, isn't it? Remember the hushed, important way Miss Ella always spoke of her library?"

The girl laughed, nodding. She liked the rear room to which he led her. Its solidity spoke of all she had missed without knowing it. The room had a look of plenty and of peace. She could not imagine her mother whining for money in that room or anyone planning to deceive an old lady in order to be remembered in a will.

"I think you must have been very happy in this house," she said as she sank into a chair.

For a moment his face clouded. "I don't suppose," he said, "that there are many old houses with-

WALTON FINDS MILLER "SOFT" IN SUNDAY GAME

Pounded His Curves To Total 20 Hits and Beat The Ridgers

The Walton baseball club, minus their star twirler, "Sandy" Costgrove, walloped the offerings of "Smookey Joe" Miller freely in their return game with Oak Ridge on the latter's home lot Sunday afternoon and won by a score of 9 to 6. Eleven hits were garnered off Miller's twirling, which coupled with loose playing in other departments, netted the winning count. Leo Bushman took the mound for Walton when Costgrove failed to report and went through the nine innings, experiencing only one weak moment, that coming in the sixth, when the Ridgers were able to score four tallies. Next Sunday the Forrester All-Stars will make their appearance on the Ridgers' field. The score of yesterday's game was as follows:

SCREW-BALL HUBBELL

Carl Hubbell of the Giants and his screw ball have gone on record with a performance that, probably will not be equalled for several seasons. Eighteen scoreless innings against the Cardinals bring back the days of Iron Man Joe McGinnity of ancient memory.

Defining Hubbell's chief stock in trade, the screw ball, is taking a chance on stirring up a flood of letters from fans who have different definitions given by the ball players themselves often vary. But from observation of Hubbell's delivery and a consensus of opinion among batters who have faced the strange delivery seems to be about as follows:

LIKE MATTY'S SPECIALTY

Christy Mathewson had the same kind of curve Hubbell hurls, but coming from Matty's right hand it was called a fade-away. You also can get several different kinds of answers to the question of what constitutes a fade-away.

Anyway, when Hubbell came up from Oklahoma City to Detroit in 1926, Ty Cobb scrutinized the slim young six-footer carefully. When Ty learned that Hubbell was pitching a screw ball he urged him to forget it, advising the recruit that it would ruin his arm.

STOP GIANTS IN BRILLIANT GAMES

Sweep the Series To Take Third Place: Warnke, Tinning Star

By HUGH S. FULLERTON (Associated Press Sports Writer.)

The nation's baseball fans today were faced with the task of keeping one eye focussed upon George Herman (Babe) Ruth, and the other upon the Chicago Cubs, who have forced their way into the thick of the National League race.

Ruth, the old gentleman who has been reported "through" at various times for the last half dozen years, hoisted three home runs into the bleachers at the

The screw ball happened to be something Carl learned as a kid on the Oklahoma lots, and he decided to stick with it even though it did carry him to Toronto that year.

McGRAW SEES HIM

From Toronto Hubbell drifted to the Three-Eye League and Texas League where McGraw himself spotted him. The Giants paid $40,000, he reported in 1928 and never has had a season in which he lost more than he won.

Even in that disastrous 1932 campaign, Hubbell came up with 13 victories against 11 defeats. Herculean pitching for a seventh place club.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

Carl Hubbell is proprietor of a cotton farm near Meeker, Okla. . . he was born 30 years ago at Carthage, Mo. . . back in 1929 he pitched the only no-hit-no-run game of the major league season . . . he is tall, slender and wiry . . . one of a family of several ball-playing brothers . . . he took a younger brother, Merritt, to the Giants' training camp last spring . . . Once in Chicago McGraw slew Hubbell with words . . . with men on first and third, McGraw suspecting a possible double steal ordered Catcher O'Farrell to whip the ball back to Hubbell, who was to fire it to third . . . but Hubbell forgot . . . and ducked under O'Farrell's fine whip as the man on first started for second . . . the ball rolled to center field . . . McGraw's reflections were deleted by the censors.

Yankee Stadium yesterday and personally conducted the Yanks to two victories over the Detroit Tigers, 11-7 and 7-6. The three circuit swats, which drove in six runs, lifted the Babe's total to 22 and left him only two behind Jimmie Fox of the Athletics.

Gain Half Game

The Yanks, however, gained only a half game and remained four behind the Washington Senators, who scored three runs in the first inning and edged out Cleveland's Indians, 3 to 2.

The Cubs climbed into third place in the National League, passing the idle Pittsburgh Pirates, as they took a pair of games from the pace setting New York Giants, 5-0 and 2-1. They ran their string of victories to five games and New York's defeat chain to six.

The Giants collected only ten hits altogether off Lon Warneke and Bud Tinning and the latter, after battling Fred Fitzsimmons on the hill in brilliant style, drove in the winning run in the ninth inning of the second game.

The double defeat reduced the Giant's lead over St. Louis to 3-1-2 games, but the Brooklyn Dodgers kept things from becoming worse by dividing a twin bill with the Cardinals. A triple by Ralph Boyle with two aboard in the eleventh gave Brooklyn a 8-6 decision in the opener, but Tex Carleton turned in a seven-hit

Braves Over .500

The Boston Braves' winning streak took them above the .500 mark for the first time this season as they won two close games from the Cincinnati Reds, 3 to 2 and 3 to 1. The first game went ten innings before a hit batsman and a couple of singles off Paul Derringer, produced the winning run. Wally Berger socked his 16th home run in the opener.

The Boston Red Sox and St. Louis Browns divide a doubleheader, the Sox winning the first contest 4 to 0 behind the five hit flinging of George Piparas and the Browns pounded out a 9 to 2 victory in the nightcap. Jim Levey, St. Louis shortstop, was injured in the opener when a pitched ball hit his arm.

Other major league clubs had an open date.
